Informational Presentation by Professor Sock-Yong Phang, Celia Moh Chair Professor of Economics at the School of Economics, Singapore Management University on “Value Capture and Housing Affordability: Insights from Singapore.”

Member China joined the meeting at 9:38 a.m.

Mr. Nakamoto introduced Professor Sock-Yong Phang and welcomed her to provide her presentation.

Professor Phang presented information on Singapore’s housing situation, policies regarding land and housing, government land sales, and the fiscal implications of land value capture. The Land Acquisition Act of 1966 was pivotal in empowering the Singaporean government to address housing problems, allowing their acquisition of land (i) for any public purpose, (ii) by any person, corporation, or statutory board, for any work or an undertaking which, in the opinion of the Minister, is of public benefit, public utility, or in the public interest, and (iii) for any residential, commercial or industrial purposes. The land use planning process was defined with regular reviews, ministerial approval, and ultimately allocated or released to the appropriate entity. Multiple housing supply and demand regulations were implemented to keep up with trends, such as first-time marriage rates, income rates, and foreigner population rates. Professor Phang summarized how the Singapore government’s financial strategies were utilized to support the various public projects.

Vice Chair Ishii asked Professor Phang for her recommendations on improving the infrastructure and housing market in Hawaii.

Professor Phang recommended that Hawaii should take actions to meet supply needs, and if possible, reduce foreign demand and short-term rentals.

Member Streitz and Member Leong asked clarifying questions regarding Professor Phang's presentation.

Secretary Apo expressed his appreciation for this presentation, as it provides relevant guidance for HCDA's efforts to create community development districts.

Member China asked for further explanation on the taxation on private property sales in Singapore.

Professor Phang explained that there is a standard buyer stamp duty of approximately 6%, with an additional buyer stamp duty according to the citizenship of the buyer and if the sale is the buyer's first property.

Chair Higa asked for further explanation on the betterment development rights charges.

Professor Phang explained that the betterment tax amount is dependent on the commercial land square footage of the surrounding area every six months.
