

Jason Bradshaw, Director (At Large)

Jason Bradshaw was born and raised in Hawaii and is a proud graduate of Hawaii's public schools. Jason attended Northern Arizona University and received his undergraduate degree in political science. After college, Jason worked for Senator Daniel K. Inouye in Washington, D.C. when he was the Chair of the Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee. While in D.C., Jason was offered a job back home as the Political Director of the Hawaii State AFL-CIO which he accepted and spent nearly 11 years with the Hawaii State AFL-CIO advocating for working families. Jason has also worked for the ILWU Local 142 as their legislative representative and currently works for the Hawaii Ironworkers Stabilization Fund as one of their government affairs representatives. Jason also previously served as a board member on the Hawaii Workforce Development Council.